AN EXCELLENT RECEPTION.

THE FALLACY OF SOCIALISM.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL REPORTER.)

—————

GEELONG (Vic.), Thursday.

Mr. G. H. Hogg addressed the electrons on the subject of the G. H. Hogg. He arrived at midday, accompanied by Mrs. Reid and Dr. Gratian Wilson, a member for Corangamite. The party in attendance consisted of the local factors during the afternoon.

His Majesty's Theatre was packed with a full house of about 1700. The meeting was presided over by the auspices of the Farmers' League and the Australian Women's National League, and the Victorian Citizens' League.

Mr. Reid was received with loud and prolonged applause on rising. He referred to the meeting of the day, and the presence of the audience, and the reception that was given Mr. Wilson.

At that occasion. It was a regrettable experience, he said, that had been set Victorianism on speech was denied to a man, whatever his voice might be.

A Voice: You're all right, George!

Mr. Reid: Now, you're no relation of mine, and I don't want to be spoke for someone else on the floor of the Federal Parliament.

his relations with Mr. Doakin. He said that Doakin had a written understanding. A Voice: Temporarily.

Mr. Reid: Quite so. It was a very temporary one. (Laughter.)

Mr. Doakin: I have a vast majority of the people of Australia. The principle of socialism, to Mr. Watson's words, was the beacon-light of the whole labour movement. That has been settled by the labour conference of Victoria.

Mr. Reid: I am not a supporter of socialism, and whether it was for good or for evil, I do not intend to say. I am a supporter of the National Union, which was to oppose the Labour Union, which was founded by Mr. Doakin, and I have learned that it now had a membership of 1200, and the whole league has determined to oppose the gentlemen who were the cause of the trouble.

Mr. Doakin: I am glad to hear that, and the Cardinal in Sydney to say he didn't think what socialism meant. They all know what it meant. It meant the destruction of the system of taxation, and exchange, and the destruction of private enterprise.

Mr. Reid: The gentlemen of Australia did not come for the purpose of doing such things.

lonist, take the job." What he said, however, was that the Government had not taken the law of the country so as to make a question of a man getting bread and butter for his family even on the day of the strike. (Applause.) The speaker said that the Government was the old persecuting spirit of telling men that they wanted privileges others had denied them. (Applause.) The union label was an attempt to use the power of the State for the benefit of one class to the detriment of another. (Applause.) Another thing which was disgraceful to the Deakin Government and the hour party was when it was found that the Government had been guilty of the electoral divisions and people were frauded of their rights. The Deakin Government was a Government that was not a Government in great drought. Now, what achievement could the Labour party point to? The Arbitration Court was a failure. The Government did not bring peace to the great powers of capital and labour. He hoped that, instead of a higher plane, and settle their differences by meeting amicably. (Applause.)
